LONDON LEADS SENATOR BORAH IN N. J. PRIMARY

With Nearly Half of

SURE OF 26 VOTES
FOR CONVENTION

Gov. Hoffman Winner In Delegate-At-Large
Contest

(By Associated Press)
NEWARK, N. J., May 20.—Gov.
M. Landon's lead over United States Senator William E. Borah in New Jersey's presidential preference primary jumped to better than 3 1/2 to one today with nearly half of the vote counted.

In 1,714 out of 3,578 election districts in the state, Landon received 2,336 votes and Borah 46,792.
Governor Landon, who did not campaign in the state but had the support of the Republican organization, was assured of the votes of the four delegates-at-large to the Cleveland convention, and of at least 26 of the 28 district delegates.

Wins At Least 26 Votes
This gave Landon at least 26 of New Jersey's 32 votes in the convention. There was a possibility he might capture two more, but four district delegates were undecided.

Democratic voters ratified a slate of 16 district delegates and eight delegates-at-large pledged to President Roosevelt. Each will have a half-vote in the convention and the president is assured of the state's 32 votes.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, New York attorney and Col. Charles A.
Lindbergh's legal adviser, alone entered the Democratic preferential primary. In the 1,714 districts he polled 17,804 votes.

The returns also virtually assured the election of Gov. Harold G.
Hoffman as delegate-at-large to the Republican convention. One of four picked by the state committee to support Landon was opposed by former representative Franklin W. Fort.
The governor's committee in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case had disgraced "Jersey State."

Holds Big Lead
With more than half of the vote counted, the governor led, also pledged to Landon, by 35,000 votes.
In 1,847 districts the governor polled 115,876 votes to 80,879 for Fort, who was in fifth place. The governor, who was in first place in the early returns, felt to second Fort's home county of Essex in his lead materially.

Although President Roosevelt did not enter the preferential contest and was criticized by Breckinridge for doing so, his "write in" vote in many districts exceeded that of the New Yorker. In Atlanta county 103 districts gave the president a "write in" vote of 3852.
While Breckinridge's vote was 571.
United States Senator W. Warren Barbour apparently was renominated by the Republicans. His opponent in the November election likely will be State Senator William E. Smathers, Democratic organization candidate who held a large lead over former Assemblyman Theron McCampbell of Monmouth.
All of the present 14 present congressmen, 10 Republican and four Democrats, were leading.

Council Appropriates Funds To Pay For State St., Paving

SEWER TAPPING CHARGE IS SET

Ordinance Is Asked For Regulation of Shops
In Salem

City council at its meeting in city hall Tuesday night passed an emergency ordinance appropriating $2,500 from the motor vehicle license fund to the street maintenance and repair fund for the East State st. WPA repaving job now in progress. The sum represents the city's cost in the $9,000 project.

Turning its attention to other matters pertaining to WPA projects, council passed another ordinance which established a sanitary sewer attachment tapping charge against home owners whose property is affected by new sewer or water line projects.

Council explained that a charge is made where it becomes necessary to attach or connect the sewers to abutting property.

Sidewalk Project Revived

The streets, alleys and sidewalks committee, headed by C. F. Zimmerman, introduced a resolution calling upon property owners to take advantage of a current WPA sidewalk project whereby new walks may be laid at a nominal expense.

June 1 has been set for the deadline in the WPA sidewalk project, City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff informed council. Applications now are being taken at the engineer's office in city hall. Under terms of the WPA, home owners may have sidewalks laid by paying the cost of the material. The labor and equipment is furnished by the government.

Appeals by residents in several sections of the city for the installation of sewers resulted in an announcement last night by Council President Charles Cornwall that the East State st. paving project would be rushed to completion before other WPA jobs are started.

Residents of Roosevelt ave. are desirous of having a deferred $2,500 sewer project started. Councilman
A. P. Morris said.

Suggests Painter Bid Project

Another citizen, Paul Wright, told council a sewer line was needed along Painter road, where is acres of land are to be converted into a new residential allotment.

Wright's request for a sewer line was turned over to the sewer and finance committees for consideration.

Cletus Paumier, chairman of the water committee, reported that estimates on two water line jobs had been deferred for the moment.

Service Director Frank Wilson informed council that the city was re-advertising for bids on the placement of a roller for street purposes.
First bids received were found unsatisfactory.

Water Collections Good

Success in the collection of delinquent water bills was reported to council by Service Director Frank Wilson and members of the water committee.

City officials two weeks ago opened an intensive campaign to collect a huge sum in tardy water bills. The delinquencies owed the city totaled $20,000.

Water was shut off at the homes of several clients who refused to heed the warnings of Director Wilson that payments on back bills must be made. Several men were given an opportunity to work out part of their debt to the city.

The council committee of the whole held a special meeting following adjournment last night to study samples of street lighting cable before making necessary purchases.

Salem Physicians On Lisbon Program

Two Salem physicians, Dr. Guy E. Byers and Dr. L. A. Cobbs, were on the program for the Columbiana County Medical society meeting in the Legion hall at Lisbon Tuesday night.

A report of the mid-year conference of Ohio State Medical association was given by Dr. Byers while Dr. Cobbs spoke on "The Prevalence of Arterial Hypertension."

Dr. V. E. McDowd and Dr. J.
W. Schoenicke, both of East Liverpool, also addressed the meeting.
A lunch and smoker followed.

Council To Study Handbill Problem

What makes East State st., as well as many residence streets, unsightly at times?

Councilman C. F. Zimmerman had an answer for the question last night, as he criticized the passing of handbills, cards and various placards, in huge quantities and indiscriminately.

"They stick them in the windshields of automobiles, sometimes inside," he told council. "The driver usually pulls them off the car and throws them in the street. As a result, the streets at times, quite frequently on Saturday nights after the handbill passers have been busy all afternoon, become cluttered up with the refuse."

Council will study the problem.

MAYOR SEEKING ALL-NIGHT LIGHT

Calls On Council To Consider Plans for Stag-ger System

Mayor George Harroff asked city council last night to consider the possibility of burning street lights throughout the night instead of turning them off at midnight.

The mayor said "I am still of the opinion that we could stagger the lights effectively and provide light for the residential sections of the city at little extra expense."

Members of the lighting committee, accompanied by several other city officials, will make a tour of the city Thursday night to survey street lights with reference to a stagger system where certain lamps would be extinguished and bulbs of smaller wattage installed in other lamps.

The council finance committee also will confer with members of the lighting committee within a few days to study the financial end of the street light proposal. Cletus Paumier, chairman of the appropriation and finance committee, told council last night that "we really can't tell where we stand financially until a settlement is made on the last tax collection."

Councilman George McArthur complained to council of the painting of certain light globes by citizens in an attempt to keep light from shining in their homes. The service director was ordered to have the persons who had painted the globes too extensively, to remove the paint.

Civics Pupils Hear Council Proceedings

A group of eighth grade students from Fourth street school, representing six different sections of the civics classes at the school, attended the regular meeting of city council Tuesday night at city hall.

They were accompanied by their teachers, Miss Ann Connors and Miss Elizabeth Ward.

The pupils at the council session included:

Betty Jane Bichsel, Allen Fehr, Solbert Matz, Eugene Miller, Sherman Myers, Robert Shoe, Vivian Snipes, William Sproat, Peggy Stewart, Theodore Ursu, Lee Willman,

Robert Dixon.

Nab Leetonia Man As Drunken Driver

J. G. Fieldhouse of Leetonia was arrested by A. E. Mercer and Carrol Ruben, Salem state highway patrolmen, on a charge of driving while intoxicated when the officers stopped his car on Route 173 between Sebring and Alliance at 6:30
p. m. yesterday.

When arraigned before Mayor F.
M. Howell at Sebring, Fieldhouse pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. The mayor also suspended the Leetonian's driving rights for six months.

Washingtonville Stretch, Route 14, Will Be Re-Paved to 40-Ft. Width

Plans for the improvement of State Route 14 between Washingtonville and Columbiana have been revised on order of the state highway department, Resident Engineer Robert S. Wheatley announced today.

The plans and specifications are to be completed and forwarded to the department offices at Columbus this week.

While the road is under reconstruction, traffic will be detoured east and west from Columbiana and Washingtonville through Leetonia. Estimated cost of the improvement has not been announced.

The road, commonly known as the Cox highway, will be improved to a width of 40 feet from the Erie railroad crossing to the summit of

BARBERS' HOURS BEFORE SOLONS

Council Also Calls Attention to New WPA Sidewalk Project

A group of 22 Salem barbers appealed to city council last night for legislation to regulate the operation of barber shops within the city.

Don Mathews, spokesman for the barbers, explained that an ordinance similar to the one proposed for passage in council was upheld by the Ohio supreme court recently, ruling municipalities have the constitutional right to regulate the opening and closing of barber shops.

The proposed plan provides municipal regulation governing the is-surance of licenses to local barbers and the levying of fines in cases of violations of license provisions.
Fees set down in the measure are $2 annually.

The plan also would exclude any person not a citizen of the United States from the operation of a barber shop.

The ordinance committee took the proposal under consideration.

250 BATTING AVERAGE

The new deal's batting average in the supreme court, including Monday's ruling against the Guffey act, now stands at 250. That is low in baseball. In government it is infinitesimal.

It is the result of a strange method in the handling of legislation, a system alien to American tradition. The Guffey act was proposed and passed in the knowledge that it could be held constitutional only by ignoring precedent. It was an overt attempt to remake the Constitution without adoption of an amendment.

In his separate opinion in the Guffey act case, Chief Justice Hughes wrote:

"If the people desire to give congress the power to regulate industries within the state, and the relations of employers and employees in those industries, they are at liberty to declare their will in the appropriate manner, but it is not for the court to amend the Constitution by judicial decision."

Justice Sutherland, who wrote the majority opinion, said:

"Every journey to a forbidden end begins with the first step; and the danger of such a step by the federal government in the direction of taking over the powers of the states is that the end of the journey may find the states so despoiled of their powers, or what may amount to the same thing—so relieved of the responsibilities which possession of the powers necessarily entails, as to reduce them to little more than geographical subdivisions of the national domain. It is safe to say that if, when the Constitution was under consideration, it had been thought that any such danger lurked behind its plain words, it would never have been ratified."

Nothing could be plainer than the meaning of these words. If there is to be a new order of government in the United States, it should be passed on by the people. Those who have been trying to set up a stronger federal government by congressional decree and judicial intimidation are butting their heads into a stone wall.

THE WORLD'S THEIR OYSTER

If John W. Studebaker, federal commissioner of education, is a good prophet, the 137,000 men and women graduating from colleges next month will find better employment opportunities awaiting them than have students for many years past.

Presumably, Mr. Studebaker has authoritative statistics, other than evidence of reviving business, to justify his optimism. No doubt he has a steady trickle of reports coming over his desk suggesting that many of the June graduates already are sure of placement. Additional support for his belief is obtained from letters of college presidents in the current issue of the magazine "Letters." They report that many of last year's graduates already are placed and that the volume of inquiries from prospective employers is encouraging.

Such optimism, as Commissioner Studebaker concedes, does not solve the problem of providing opportunity for a lifetime of service and security. It must be remembered, also, that 1,000,000 high school diplomas will be awarded next month.

Granted that economic conditions will make possible employment of a substantial number of these graduates, it cannot be denied that the educational institutions of the country still will be faced by a tremendous problem. Primarily, their task increasingly will be to see that more students are trained for a specific kind of usefulness, Commissioner Studebaker believes.

In his remarks is the implication that increasing emphasis will be laid upon vocational training. Advocates of the liberal arts may argue with him, but there can be no challenging the assertion that the oyster which traditionally is the symbol of the graduate's world cannot be opened without an oyster opener.

Our fiscal structure is standing up very well. A Cleveland answers editor tells an inquirer that a half-dime dated 1851, is still worth five cents.—Detroit News.

THE STARS SAY

For Thursday, May 21

Although there may be opportunity for change or travel on this day, according to the planetary configurations, there also are omens of duplicity, fraud and misrepresentation with many pitfalls of which to be wary. This may be in the making of contracts or signing of documents or other writings, possibly in connection with rings, combines, closed corporations or secret organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves immersed in a year of fraud, deception, trickery, snares and pitfalls, unless they are extremely cautious in signing papers or contracts, and shun litigation, quarrels and rash moves.

A child born on this day may be clever and original, but it may be carried away by impulse and do regrettable and questionable things.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 20—Clarence Budington Kelland continues his career as the town's most amazing luncheon ring-master. He presides at the Dutch Treat Tuesday noon affairs where he not only uses the knout with a madman's fury but throws salt into the wounds.

To intimidate he is "Bud." He looks as though he might have just left the boys at the general store in his native Portland, Mich., to preside over what is likely the most sophisticated male gathering in America. Dutch Treaters are foremost writers, artists and editors.

At each luncheon famous visiting celebrities are guests of honor. And the more celebrated they are, the more venomous is the Kelland introduction. It is no descriptive exaggeration to say he skins them alive and makes them like it.

Afterward he expresses the welcoming spirit of the Rotarian, for in truth he is actually a "folksey" fellow. Frank Crowninshield wrote of him in the Dutch Treat Year Book: "Think of a boy wanting passionately to be Attila suddenly discovering that in reality he was Ariel—the spirit of delight."

Among the Dutch Treat's honored guests given a ribbing by Bud Kelland during the past year were General Hugh Johnson, Sidney Kingsley, Mayor La Guardia, Rosa Ponsella, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, David Sarnoff, G. B. Stern, Rebecca West, John Charles Thomas, Jascha Heifetz, George Creel, Raymond L. Dittmars, Amelia Earhart and Dr. Alexis Carrel. Not one of the distinguished visitors flinched under fire. All showed they could take it.

And in the 1936 Dutch Treat Year Book, William L. Chenery, the magazine editor, went poetic with this:

I don't want to write an article on Nudes;
My acquaintance with them is very slight.
So far as I know,
They are quite all right.
My only objection is to snickering old men.

One of the long-standing friendships of the town is between Harold Ross, editor of The New Yorker, and the former policeman, Edward McNamara, known also in the realms of theatricals as "the singing cop." McNamara is a rough and ready Irishman streaked with the usual sentimentality and Celtic wit. Before Ross married recently, they shared the same apartment and often made the after dark places and first nights together.

Mrs. Catherine Branchard has completed 50 years of rooming house keeping at 61 Washington Square and is still receiving "paying guests." Mrs. Branchard, a Swiss, is 80 now but active enough to fare forth on sunny afternoons in her gay '90 horse-drawn barouche for a jog about The Village she knows so well. Her three-story brick rooming house with the steps scrubbed white, Baltimore fashion, is known in the square as "the house of genius." Among her renters in the struggling days were Frank Norris, Alan Seeger, Theodore Dreiser, Gelett Burgess, Eugene O'Neill, Thompson Buchanan and John Reed. A modest plaque of Seeger adorns the facade. On a second floor room at No. 61 Madam Adeline Patti rehearsed for "Cavaleria Rusticana." Paul Palmer, of the American Mercury, is now a star boarder and Maxwell Bodenheim helps sustain the literary tradition. Her most orderly boarder was Theodore Dreiser, who kept his room in apple pie order—"a gloomy young man who often rocked in a window chair all evening folding and refolding his handkerchief." A hobby he indulges to this day on his magnificent estate.

There was a charm, a picturesque shabbiness, about the old-time rooming and boarding houses never captured by the chic modern bachelor apartment. I lived in three in New York and I never pass the sites where they stood without a pleasant little glow. The chataine of one in West 57th street was a ringer for the imperious Mrs. Pat Campbell and the only woman I ever saw off stage who walked about with a shoulder-high shepherd's crook. One night she waited up in the crepuscular gloom of the parlor about a little matter of three weeks' arrears. "Come here young man," she trilled as I tip-toed through the hall, and appraising me through her longnetie inquired: "What gave you the idea that this was an eleemosynary institution?" Then, doffing her fine ways, said: "Kick in before breakfast tomorrow."

Hiccoughs

A SEVERE and prolonged attack of hiccough is a distressing experience. Ordinarily the trouble subsides within a few minutes. But there are cases which may last for several hours. At times we read of cases which continue for several weeks or even months. They baffle medical science and unless drastic measures are taken, may prove exceedingly serious.

Hiccough is commonly seen in children who are careless in their eating habits and in consequence suffer from mild digestive disorders. Any disturbance of the stomach may lead to irritation of the "phrenic" nerve, the nerve which has an important relationship to the diaphragm, the muscular partition between chest and abdominal cavities.

Often repeated attacks of hiccough may be traced to some localized infection within the body, such as a diseased liver, gall bladder, stomach, tonsils or teeth. Persons who bolt their food, swallowing it without proper chewing, are likely to be victims of hiccough.

After Operations

In major abdominal operations

Breadwinner

Harry Twiford, disabled war veteran and proprietor of a Los Angeles garage which "wasn't doing so well," discovered a litter of four pups in the basement of his establishment one day. He kept the mother dog and one puppy, which he named Squeezit. He taught Squeezit tricks, and the dog's ability won him a contract of $35 a day with the movie studios.

where handling of certain internal organs is necessary, the surgeon exercises great care. He knows that irritation or pressure may lead to persistent and annoying hiccough.

Of course, this may occur in spite of the surgeon's precautions. This is especially true in operations performed on the intestine, stomach and gall bladder. In such cases hiccough usually appears within twenty-four hours after the operation. Although it is annoying and often persists for several days, it subsides in due time.

You are familiar with the various home measures offered for the relief of hiccough. Taking a few swallows of water, inhaling fumes from a piece of horse radish, tickling the nose, slapping the back, gazing at a given object to take the mind off the symptom, and other methods are advised for this annoying complaint. One of these may be beneficial, but in certain types of hiccough more energetic measures must be used. At times it may be necessary to wash out the stomach or administer a mild anesthetic or narcotic. The physician should be consulted and his advice carefully followed.

Answers to Health queries

M. M. D. Q.—What do you advise for osteomyelitis? I have had this condition for the past seven years in the hip bone, which necessitates using crutches. This happened after a fall. What kind of a doctor should I see for further examination?

A.—Consult an orthopedist for further examination. This condition requires careful medical attention; your doctor will outline the necessary treatment.

Miss E. D. Q.—My throat seems dry and the glands swell at times—what would cause this condition? I am starting to have neuritis. Would this be due to chronic catarrh?

A.—Have the throat examined. Overcome any underlying catarrhal condition. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed, stamped envelopes with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, in care of this newspaper, at its main office in this city.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

BIG NEWS from the Supreme Court of the United States and the U. C. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Two "far-reaching experiments" of the Roosevelt New Deal are declared unconstitutional.

"The Supreme Court in a sweeping decision killed the Guffey Coal Act; the District of Columbia Court of Appeals held the resettlement administration under Prof. Tugwell violates the fundamental law of the land," according to a Universal Service dispatch from Washington.

THE DECISIONS set forth that "these major experiments in socialization involve unlawful delegation of powers vested in Congress and violation by the federal government of the rights of the states," the Washington dispatch avers.

The resettlement decision affected only that part of the relief activities under Prof. Tugwell's administration, leaving undecided the remainder of the 4,300 million dollars voted to the President last year.

Much of the resettlement money has been spent and much more allocated, cancellation of which will raise problems.

THE DECISION of the Court of Appeals virtually holds that the national government has nothing to do with the housing problems of the people and of the states.

If this decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals is upheld, this, with the Supreme Court decision killing the Guffey Coal Act would make a complete upset of the entire New Deal program and make drastic action necessary to New Deal activities.

AT ANGEL'S CAMP, Cal., twenty-five thousand persons watched the annual Calaveras County frog-jumping contest and saw "Can't Take It" cover a distance of 12 feet 3 inches in three hops.

Another frog, raised on the ranch of the late Will Rogers, was second, with 12 feet 2 inches.

TWENTY-FIVE thousand human beings watched some frogs hop. Not half as many would have gathered to hear Einstein lecture on relativity. This may mean that many human beings are nearer to the frog than they are to Einstein.

A famous scientist said that there is a greater difference between a highly educated white man and an African bushman than between that bushman and a blade of grass.

THE BIG dirigible, making its third trip across the Atlantic, will land at Lakehurst, N. J., tomorrow. A few will gather to see it, after a while nobody will notice its coming; we get used to anything. But we ought NOT to get used to the fact that while Hitler's swastika sails back and forth across the Atlantic on time and in safety, Uncle Sam's Stars and Stripes sit on the ground and wonder how they do it.

IT IS suggested that every American be compelled to go to school until 22 years of age, to cut down the competition for jobs.

It might be simpler to keep everybody in school until sixty than to give everybody a pension of $200 a month. What could be simpler than that?

The average sensible American starts making a living long before he is twenty-two, and would do well to continue on that basis. The American Federation of Labor says we still have more than 12,000,000 idle.

The French have a saying: "The more it changes, the more it is the same thing."

JACK SULLIVAN, twenty-three, killed a railroad officer in a "gas fight," and died in the gas chamber at Florence, Arizona.

A photograph shows him in the execution chamber, dressed in shorts, a stethoscope fastened over his heart with tape to let doctors outside the deadly chamber listen and know when he died. That photograph shows him holding a cigar in his teeth, grinning.

When asked, just before he was put into the lethal chamber whether he wanted anything, he answered with a smile:

"Yes, you might give me a gas mask."

THE YOUNG man's photograph shows delight in his ability to "die game." He was dead twelve seconds after that photograph was taken. Crime really does not pay.

LESS THAN three weeks from tomorrow the deed will be done in Cleveland. The Republican candidate will be named.

It is observed that Mr. Landon is smiling in all his photographs. No wonder. He is so far ahead in the field now that it is really no race.

A straw vote in New York, reported by the New York Times, shows Landon distancing his contemporaries, on an average, by more than ten votes to one. "Ten to one against the field" is big odds.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 35c.

BUYING a spring bonnet this year ought to be a distinctly pleasurable occupation. For, since almost every style and shape is represented, it is just a question of picking the most devastating hat, instead of selecting one that is merely smart because it is of the current mode, even if it doesn't suit. Flower trims are still popular, but wings are beginning to sprout on many of the new hats, while ribbon trim has its admirers. And there are smart new felts as well as jaunty straws. The hat sketched, left, is of a brown straw breton worn tipped over the brow. A double bow of pink and brown mouseline de soie juts out from beneath the rear brim. A ruff of the same fabric is worn with the hat. Nice with tailored clothes is the hat of navy shantung straw with wired loops of rose taffeta ribbon, right. White shiny cellophane straw and silk tubing combine to make the pretty bird hat with the veil.

Church Auxiliary Is Entertained

Miss Tamar Thumm and Mrs. J. S. Perkins were associate hostesses last night when Mrs. Henry Chatfield entertained members of the Anne B. Gilbert auxiliary of the Presbyterian church at her home on East Fourth st.

On June 16 the group will have a supper prior to the meeting at the church.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

WE CAN'T understand how the "gloomy Dane" could have been gloomy if he had Danish cooking. Recently we went to a party at the hotel apartment of Lauritz Melchior, the world-famous Danish tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, and we don't know when we have sampled more delicious and cheerful food.

Melchior, whose forte is Wagner, is interested in cooking and he and his wife gladly contributed recipes when we begged some for our readers. The party was for the tenor's birthday and so hors d'oeuvres and marvelous sweets were featured. Incidentally, we want to mention that many of the recipes were evolved by the Melchior cook who later became the most popular cook-book author in Scandinavia.

But now to work on some smorgasbord, four herring hors d'oeuvres that make a very colorful platter. Soak herring in oyster juice for a day, or until the fish has a brownish gray color. The piquant flavor is grand.

Salt Herring Salad
For a salt herring salad, cut salt herring into small squares and mix with chopped boiled potatoes. Allow to stand for a day. Red herring salad is a sweet dish and is made by chopping the herring fine, adding sugar to taste and then mixing in beet juice until the mixture is dark red.

Herring's eye is Mr. Melchior's own recipe and is served in his homes here and in Europe constantly. Chop the yolk of eggs and encircle with finely-chopped onion. Surround this with a ring of finely-chopped herring and serve on small pieces of toast. As a side dish serve "asca" which is made of plump cucumbers peeled and cut in strips and boiled in sugar and vinegar until they have a glazed appearance.

Other Favorites

Then there is Rulepoise, which is made from rib lamb cut in strips and cooked in salt water until tender and then salted down in brine for a day. Remove lamb from brine and roll it out quite flat, like a piece of dough with such spices as nutmeg, allspice, ground peppers, clove and cinnamon covering it the top. Roll entire piece up and tie it with string to hold together. Cook until it is of firm consistency. When finished cooking, a weight such as an iron is put on the roll to press it firmly together. Leave standing for a few hours, then cut the strings and slice like a roll. It also can be made with pork.

Other favorite Melchior recipes, which the singer also likes to prepare, include a beefsteak and a tasty way of preparing sea or rock bass. For the former, salt and pepper a good-sized beefsteak. Pound it hard for several minutes until quite flat. Sear for a moment in a very hot pan. If any shreds of meat adhere to the pan, scrape them up and saute in butter. Then put the steak into this and allow it to cook quietly for several minutes. In another pan saute shredded onions, and pour these over the meat. Turn the flame very high pie or ice cream and cake. Or, if the guests are dieting, serve sherbet and vanilla wafers.

Here we offer a batch of feed 'em recipes, all contributed by successful hostesses. For rice parfait, soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one and a half cups of milk until dissolved. Then add two cups hot boiled rice. When cold, fold in one cup cream which has been beaten until stiff. Add one cup chopped nuts and one teaspoon vanilla. Pour into wet mold, pack in ice and salt for several hours. Serve as ice cream on large plate or in individual slices on dessert plates.

Almond date torte makes another splendid party dessert. Beat three egg yolks until light, beat in gradually three-quarters of a cup of powdered sugar. Pour boiling water over one cup of sliced dates; drain and rub to a smooth paste. Add dates, quarter cup cracker crumbs, and teaspoon baking powder and half cup chopped almonds. Mix well and fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Spread mixture evenly over shallow, well-oiled pan. Bake in slow oven for about 45 minutes. Cool before removing from pan. Cut in squares and serve cold with whipped cream or ice cream.

A good lemon sherbet is made with one cup water, quarter cup sugar and half cup white corn syrup boiled together for five minutes. Add half cup lemon juice. Cool and freeze to a mush. Add one beaten egg white and freeze until firm.

Pie Plant Pete Is K. of C. Guest

Pie Plant Pete, nationally famous singer of old-time songs and mountain ballads, will be the guest artist of Salem council, Knights of Columbus, at a smoker to be held this evening at Salem Council club rooms on South Broadway.

The local organization has put forth great effort to procure the services of this star of the radio networks and recording studios for the entertainment of their members, former members and friends. Pie Plant Pete's radio work is known to everyone, but an added attraction will be his presentation of the new member of his act, Dick Lidyard, who possesses a fine tenor voice and has had several years' experience on both of the national networks.

A short time ago these two boys were teamed by certain officers of the N. B. C. studios. The combination has proven so successful that the committee feel they are in position to offer a real treat by presenting Pie Plant Pete and his pal, Dick Lidyard.

Grand Knight William Lippert will preside. High officials of the order, including Atty. Frank W. Emslie, district deputy, of Cleveland; District Deputy Ray C. Reilly of Youngstown and District Deputy Ernest Purton of East Liverpool will be present. Delegations will attend from the nearby councils of Leetonia and East Palestine.

Trapeze Performer Star of K. of P. Mardi Gras

In photo above, Siegrist is shown in a complicated trapeze performance with two others in an eastern circus. The first film stars Ross Alexander as a happy-go-lucky good-for-nothing who knows everybody in his home town by their first name and who has a great gift for flattery. After leaving college the boy sponges on his uncle, a wealthy apple grower, played by Joseph Cawthorn, because he and hard work do not agree. The uncle's exasperation reaches a climax when his nephew buys a ring for his sweetheart, Anita Louise, and charges it to him.

"With a neck as badly smashed as that, you're lucky to be alive."

Doctors spoke those words to Charlie Siegrist shortly after he had "cracked-up" in the midst of his flying trapeze act at Madison Square Garden one day in 1931.

"Is it that bad?" Charlie asked, brushing aside a recollection of that fleeting moment when he was swirling through space, bouncing high off the net and coming to rest on the cold floor.

"Bad?" the doctors replied. "If you must know Charlie, it's so bad that you never can go on a trapeze again."

But those words are only memories now. Memories that perhaps are not pleasant to recall for Charlie Siegrist has made a comeback.

Nine months after his accident, he again climbed to the high pedestal and clutched the trapeze bar in his hands. He took a single flip and went to bed for two days.

But that didn't wipe out his grim determination to again perform. He came back frequently, working

In Smith Plot

New York Grand Jury returned true bills charging extortion against Max D. Krone (above), a private detective and A. Henry Ross, attorney, on complaint of Alfred Smith, Jr., who claims he paid hush money to a total of $10,000 to the accused men.

Theater Attractions

"Brides Are Like That," a comedy, and a jewel robbery film, "Big Brown Eyes," make up the program on the double feature bill at the State theater tonight and tomorrow.

The first film stars Ross Alexander as a happy-go-lucky good-for-nothing who knows everybody in his home town by their first name and who has a great gift for flattery. After leaving college the boy sponges on his uncle, a wealthy apple grower, played by Joseph Cawthorn, because he and hard work do not agree. The uncle's exasperation reaches a climax when his nephew buys a ring for his sweetheart, Anita Louise, and charges it to him.

Parents Have Other Views

But the young man, who expects to get his sweetheart as easily as he gets everything else, figures without her parents who have a more responsible husband picked out for her. But this young man, who wants Miss Louise more than anything else, works until he wins her.

"Big Brown Eyes" is an interesting yarn with Joan Bennett playing a newspaper woman whose hunches solve the crime, and Cary Grant as her cop sweetheart. Others in the film are Walter Pidgeon, Alan Baxter, Lloyd Nolan and Isabel Jewel.

Working on a newspaper, Miss Bennett gets several leads on a jewel robbery which is turning the town upside down. The killing of a baby is mixed up with the crime and Joan goes to work on the case. She puts her finger on the criminals and works with her sweetheart to trap them.

Joan Bennett Changes

In this film a great change has been made on Joan Bennett. Always before she has played the ingenue or the goody goody heroine, but in "Big Brown Eyes" she is seen as a sophisticated, wisecracking ex-manicurist. Critics praise the new Joan, who is said to be a much more interesting personality in this new film.

Seek Cool Water

Drillers were at work today on North Lundy ave., in an effort to reach an underground water supply to furnish cold water for the State theater's cooling system.

The theater owners said they expected to pump cooler water from underground than that which the city could supply. City council granted them permission to drill.

Foremen Edge Pottery, 9-8, For Third Class A League Win

Mullins Rallies In Ninth To Gain Victory and Stay Undefeated In League

Christians Win Over Friends, 9-8, In Well-Played Class B Circuit Contest; Games Postponed from Monday to Be Played Tonight

Mullins Foremen are riding high on the crest of a victory wave today after edging out the Pottery, 9-8, in a Class A softball league game at Centennial park yesterday. It was the Foremen's third win in as many games.

From what seemed like certain defeat, the Foremen rallied in the ninth inning of the contest to gain the victory and keep their league record unmarred.

The Pottery opened up the scoring in the second frame with three runs and then added one in the third, one in the fourth and two in the fifth while limiting the Foremen to four runs scored in the third inning.

After both teams had gone blank in the sixth and seventh frames, Mullins started out to salvage its unbeaten record by bringing in one run in the eighth.

Blank Pottery
Blanking the Pottery in its half of the eighth, the Foremen came out in the ninth, needing three runs to win. They got four. And it was fortunate too, for the Pottery made its attempt at a rally but fell short when only one run crossed the plate.

Both teams got ten hits during the contest. Earl McNamie and Jim Ahlback alternated on the mound for the Foremen while Stallsmith and Kasso took turns in the box for the Pottery.

The Pottery's downfall might be seen in the fact that nine errors were charged against it. The Foremen made three errors.

Improved Class B softball was noted on the lower diamond at the park yesterday when the Christians edged out the Friends, 9-8, in a well-played contest.

Errors Absent
Errors, which usually frequent the Class B games, were absent yesterday. The Friends made no mistakes and the Christians only three. The Christians scored their winning runs in the late innings of the contest. The Friends held the lead up until the ninth frame.

J. McQuiston, on the mound for the Christians, granted eight hits while Brantingham, pitching for the Friends, allowed nine.

Two games postponed from Monday will be played at the park tonight, Joe Kelley, director of the leagues said today.

In the Class A league, the Hardware will meet Nobil Shoes while in Class B the Presbyterians will face the Emmanuel Lutherans. Both games will start at 5:30 p. m.

Injured Back Fails To Worry Buck Star

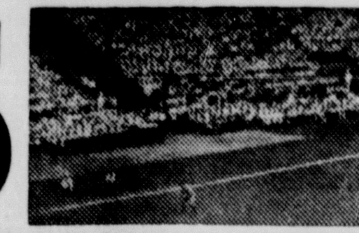

COLUMBUS, May 20. — Jesse Owens' injured back brought only smiles to the track star of Ohio State university. They were occasioned by his recollections that last year just before the Big Ten track meet he fell down a flight of stairs and injured a leg but set three new world's records in the meet a few days later.

"Maybe if this sore back stays with me I'll break a couple of records Saturday," said Jesse. So Jesse isn't worried over this week-end's conference meet.

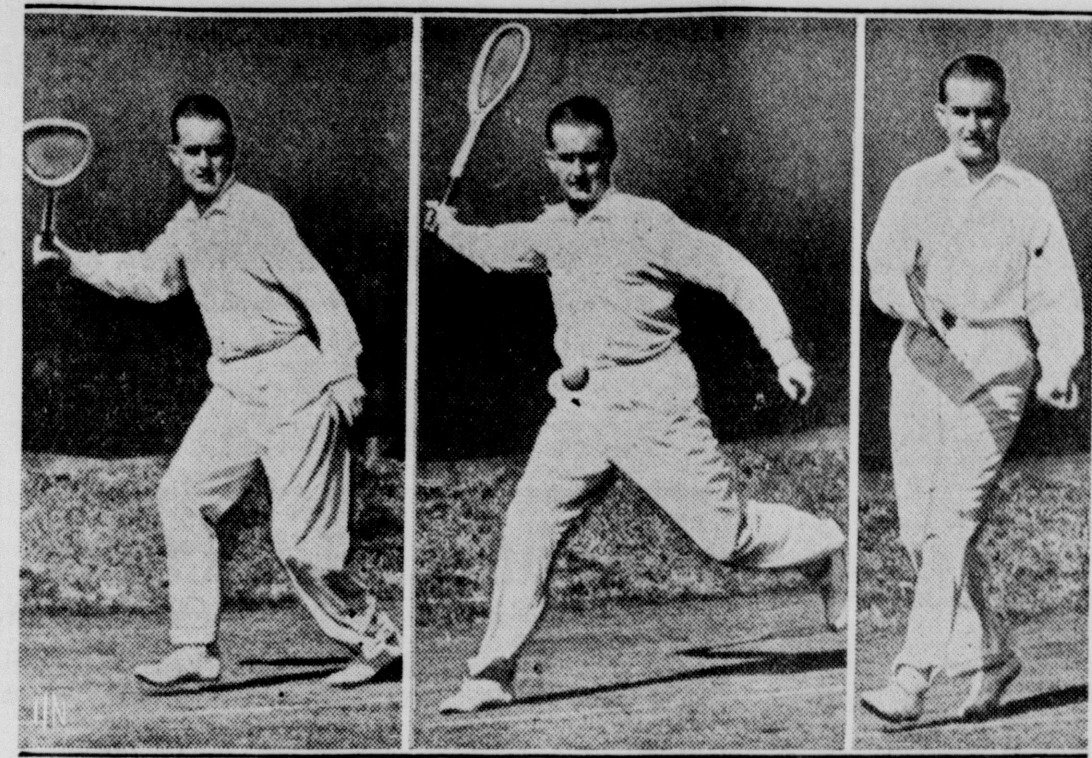

KANSAS CITY—Jimmy Garrison, 135, Kansas City, outpointed Pat Kissinger, 134½, Kansas City, (15).

That "V" Spelled Defeat

Handley, of the Cincinnati Reds, went up on his back when Joe Moore of the Giants tried to reach the bag safely on Whitehead's infield grounder in the fourth inning of the Giant-Reds game at the Polo Grounds in New York City. The upset upset a double play, and the Giants won, 4-3.

Spectacles Of Dwindling Attendance Face Indians, Giants As Crowds Lessen

Both Teams Seem Unable to Make Fans Take Notice; Fewer Than 5,000 See Tribe Lose To Yankees; Defeat Brings Tigers Near Third Place

The rather unusual spectacle of two teams, in the middle of the battles for the lead in their respective leagues and both apparently unable to make the fans take notice, is to be seen in the major leagues these days.

They are the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians, second and third respectively in the standings. They've both had a few good gatherings, but Cleveland already is facing the spectacle of dwindling attendance while the New York attitude is that the often-injured Giants can't hold together for very long.

Fewer than 5,000 fans turned out yesterday to see the Tribe engage in a final "crucial" struggle with the league-leading New York Yankees and go down, 10 to 4.

Rained Out
The Giants were rained out in their final game against Pittsburgh and got a welcome breathing spell before tackling the St. Louis Cardinals, who lead them by a half game. The Cincinnati-Brooklyn and St. Louis-Phillies games also were postponed.

Cleveland's defeat gave the Detroit Tigers a chance to come closer to third place as Tommy Bridges found some of his best form and pitched them to a 4 to 2 victory over Washington while the Red Sox kept pace with the Yankees by pulling out a 4 to 2 decision over the Chicago White Sox. Rogers Hornsby's reviving Browns bowled over the Athletics 8 to 4. The day's other contest saw the Boston Bees beat out Chicago's Cubs 6 to 5.

Remaining idle didn't prevent the Dodgers from taking another one on the chin when Freddy Lindstrom, veteran outfielder, decided he wasn't doing himself or anyone else much good as a Brooklyn player and announced his retirement from baseball. He was signed by the Dodgers in January after being unconditionally released by the Cubs and had hit only 264 in 26 games. A leg injury suffered last Friday was believed to have prompted the decision.

Pearson Lasts Longest
The few fans who did turn out at Cleveland saw Pearson outlast

George Blaeholder, despite his wildness, Lou Gehrig, Red Rolfe and Billy Sullivan belt homers and Bill Knickerbocker and Tony Lazzeri almost came to blows. Lazzeri thought Knickerbocker was unduly rough when Joe Di Maggio slid into second.

Bridges, hurling his third complete game of the season, limited the Senators to four hits and fanned five in a clash with Buck Newsom. Monte Stratton of the White Sox also pitched a four hitter but Boston scored three runs in the second on Zek Bonuras error, two passes, Oscar Melillo's hit and long fly. The Browns just breezed through as the batters who couldn't hit at all a few days ago belted Dusty Rhodes for five runs in six innings.

Boston's Bees had to conquer the elements as well as the National League champions. A wind, dust and rain storm delayed the game in the second inning and each team scored four runs in the third before Lon Warneke and Ray Benge could get warmed up again. Boston's winning runs came off Clay Bryant in the fourth.

Fight Results
NEW YORK—Sonny Jones, 142½, Vancouver, B. C., and Johnny Clinton, 146½, New York, drew, (6).

PITTSBURGH — Teddy Yarosz, 163, Pittsburgh, outpointed Bob Turner, 157, Norfolk, Va., (10).
RAVENNA, O.—Patsy Perroni, 183, Canton, O., stopped George Crosskey, 182, Philadelphia, (10).

They Tend to Their Knitting!

Something unusual in the way of a masculine hobby has been taken up by several Chicago husbands who belong to the "Tuesday Afternoon Sewing Circle", which meets at the Merchandise Mart for knitting and embroidery lessons while their wives are attending to business and going to political meetings.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

IT IS all very nice to be able to give a standing order to the neighborhood florist and so find our house fresh with glorious flowers. But not all of us are able to do so, and many of us don't care for this arrangement. We want the beauty and the color that fresh flowers give and so we decide to get this color and beauty in our own way.

And this way is through potted plants not standing about but placed in wall brackets, a new and delightful arrangement. Window and wall brackets are easy to install. They can be moved around to fit in with room or furniture changes, they are inexpensive.

So there is little or no excuse for not creating these wall gardens and so bringing a little "nature" into your home, even if it is in the thick of the city, away from all growing things. If so, all the more reason to have these wall gardens. With a little artistry and ingenuity, lovely garden-like places may be introduced into the home.

Wall Brackets Help
Wall brackets are not expensive and thus with a minimum of expense, the beauty and dignity of flowers may be part of the appointments of the home. Of course, the brackets must be firmly affixed to the wall before we decide what to put into them.

In one apartment we saw wall brackets and window brackets filled with lovely African violets. These are tiny, perfectly-formed flowers of a rich violet color and they grow in a mass of frosty green foliage. They are potted in miniature jars and they will bloom almost the year round, with scarcely any bother since this flower is extremely hardy. They will cover their particular place or niche with a glorious riot of color and there you will have a garden with bright flowers, with little expense.

Your florist will tell you of other varieties that will be just the thing for your wall brackets. And even if you don't want any growing flowers, you'll find that wall brackets offer an excellent solution of where to place flowers.

If it is a small apartment or room, often a vase of flowers seems out of proportion to the rest of the furnishings or there is the fear of upsetting the vase and contents. But brackets act as lovely and artistic flower holders. But remember that a short, squat vase should be used, rather than a tall, thin one. Otherwise such a vase is likely to topple off the bracket and shed its contents, especially the latter right over the room, with the possibility of harming delicate rugs.

So order several wall brackets, place them in advantageous corners and spots and then you'll be able to enjoy flowers the year round at a minimum of expense. White brackets are very handsome and are available in various pottery compositions as well as in wrought iron, wire, painted white. Wall brackets with plants and trailing ivy are very delightful when placed near a window. The possibilities are endless as you'll discover once you've gone in for bracket gardening.

CHAPTER XXV

Gordon came out of the booth, his shoulders sagging. He looked appealingly at Tyler.

"Now what?" he said. "I suggest that we go see your friend the local police commissioner, and lay the whole thing before him," said Tyler.

"No, no, we can't do that!" said Gordon. "It will get in the papers. That would be fatal. If it's Gaudio—"

"You can impress him with the necessity for complete secrecy," said Tyler. "And I'm sure I can get Kilrane to help us out too. Of course this is out of his jurisdiction, but he'll co-operate—spread the word to look out for Gaudio."

Gordon stood for a moment indecisively. Then he nodded. "I suppose it's all we can do," he said miserably. "Lord, if it's only just a question of ransom! I'll pay every cent I've got for her safe return!"

"All of which they probably know," said Tyler. "You'll probably hear from them. But meanwhile the police may be able to help us. After all, it's possible she—well, had some kind of attack—wandered away. Such things happen."

"All right," said Gordon dully. "We've got to do everything we can."

As they turned in at the gate, David, who had returned from the city during their absence, ran toward the two cars, followed by Nat. Nat looked at Tyler sharply. The man shook his head.

"Dave! Gordon cried, at sight of his son. 'Did she phone?'"

"No, Dad," said David. He stepped onto the running-board and gripped his father's shoulder. The older man leaned back wearily. Tyler told the chauffeur to drive on up to the house. Nat climbed into the other car beside Doris.

She was white and trembling. She leaned against him, dropping her head on his shoulder. He spoke to her, tried to bolster her courage. When the car stopped in front of the house, he helped her out.

Johnson appeared and began to ask questions. Tyler silenced him and led the way to the living-room. Gordon sat in a chair. If he uttered a word, as quickly as possible, told Nat, David and Johnson what they had done.

Kilrane will have a check made on every gangster within a hundred miles," he said. "And we can trust him absolutely. He knows what this sort of thing means. If she has been kidnapped, and they communicate with us, he'll keep hands off until she's safely returned. He knows that's the one important thing."

Tyler and Johnson urged Gordon to go to his room and try to get some rest. But the man seemed hardly to hear them. He shook his head firmly, however, when David also tried to persuade him, and sank so tightly that his knuckles stood out.

Doris absolutely refused to go to her own room. "I—I can't stand it," she said. "With both of them gone—those empty rooms on either side of me—no, no, I'll stay right here!"

"But there's no good in just sitting here," Nat protested.

Between them, they finally persuaded her to stay in David's room again. David took her upstairs. The man who had been posted in the hallway was on duty as was the guard on the balcony. When he came downstairs again, his father was standing by the door.

"I—I can't be alone," he said. "Come, David, we're all going to wait in the cottage. At least we can—try to plan what to do. Tell the operator to switch any calls that come for either of us to the cottage."

David went to the telephone and made that request. Then the four men went silently across the lawn, through the garden. The cottage was in darkness. Tyler opened the door and reached for the light-switch. They heard Ruth's voice in the darkness: "Father?"

"Yes, darling," he said, and turned on the light. She was lying on the couch in the living-room. On the table at the end of it lay her violin, beside its case. She sat up as Tyler went to her. He put an arm about her.

"Did—did you find her?" she asked.

"No," said her father. "Oh, I was afraid of that!" she said. "I—right after you left, I played . . . And I—I got something."

Gordon stared at her.

"It—it was as if some one—some one were laughing," she said.

Gordon groaned. He sank into a chair, buried his face in his hands.

"There was nothing about—Mrs. Gordon?" Tyler asked.

"Nothing about anybody," she said. "Just—laughter—satisfaction."

Gordon sprang to his feet. His son took hold of his arm, urged him to sit down.

"I can't stand this!" Gordon cried. "Ruth, you've got to get through! You've got to find out!"

"I'll try," the girl said. She reached for the violin. Her father stared at her, anxiously. Hurrying footsteps sounded on the gravel path. David opened the door. It was Nelson, carrying an envelope in his hand.

"This just came by a motorcycle messenger," he said. "The boy said a man left it at the village telegraph-office for immediate delivery."

Gordon hurried to his son, took the letter. His name was typewritten on the envelope—nothing else. With shaking hands he ripped open the envelope, stared at a sheet of typewritten paper.

"Gaudio!" he cried.

David took the letter, the others crowding about him. The letter read: "I've got your wife. You know what will happen if you crack to the bulls. Instructions will be sent you tomorrow. Sweet dreams. It was signed, 'Lovingly, Gaudio.'"

"That means ransom!" said Nat.

"Oh, thank God, thank God!"

Gordon cried. "She's unharmed. Phone Kilrane, Tyler. For God's sake, have him call off his men! I can't take the slightest chance. I'll do anything they want!"

He turned pleadingly toward Tyler, then stopped, hushed. Ruth had placed the violin to her shoulder, and now she drew the bow across the strings, slowly. She blanched, dropped the bow to her side. "Helene!" she said, her voice rising almost to a scream. "It's Helene!"

She began to sob. Tyler put his arms about her. Nat ran to the telephone. "What's the phone-number of the sanitarium?" he cried. Gordon, half-dazed, told him. Nat called the number. He could hear the operator ringing and ringing. But there was no answer. Impatiently he jiggled the hook.

"Operator," he said, "that's the hospital. They must answer!" "They've had some trouble out there," said the operator. "They called the police."

"Trouble?" said Nat. "Please try them again. Try them till they answer!"

The ringing sound continued. Finally there was an answer.

"Hello," a voice said.

"I'm calling for Paul Gordon," said Nat rapidly. "His daughter—"

"We've been trying to get you," the voice said. "Just a minute."

Everyone in the room was staring at Nat and the phone in his hand. He recognized Dr. Peters' voice on the wire.

"This is Peters," he said. "A terrible thing has happened. Two sections of armed thugs held up the sanitarium while ago and took Miss Gordon away!"

"Took her away!" Nat cried. "Kidnaped her!" said Dr. Peters.

In a huge and comfortable chair, feet on an antique footstool, a long thin cigar between his lips, lolled a heavy-set dark man with close-cropped black mustache, a man in his middle thirties, placidly reading a tabloid newspaper.

Striding back and forth restlessly, his little dark eyes almost constantly on the heavy clock which adorned the mantel, was a quick, slim fellow, for or five years younger, dark too, a man with a strong resemblance to the man in the chair.

The heavy Aubusson rug deadened the sound of his pacing feet. The man in the chair gave a low chuckle, and the younger stopped, stared at him irritably and demanded: "What's so funny?"

The man with the mustache glanced up from the paper with a grin. "Get a load of this," he said complacently. "Recommended to diversion-seekers: The grand floor show at the Palm Gardens in the Bronx. Plenty hot!"

The slim man gave an exclamation of impatience. The man in the chair tossed the paper onto a carved table and looked at him steadily.

"Take it easy, Nicky," he said. "You're as jumpy as a cat."

"Take it easy!" echoed Nicky explosively.

"That's what I said," said the other man quietly.

"Lord, Jim," said Nicky, "you ain't human!"

The man he had called Jim smiled, and made a little gesture with his hands.

"You're nuts to take this chance," Nicky said. "The bulls'll be poking their snozzles into every damn car that comes into town!"

"So what?" said Jim wearily. "Go what?" Nicky cried. "So it's our hips, if they find that broad!"

"They won't find her," said Jim composedly.

"But suppose they do?" persisted Nicky.

"They've got nothin' on you," said Jim quietly. "And they won't take me alive. If they come for me, you can stroll."

Nicky glared at him angrily. "You know me better than that, Jim," he said.

"Okay," he said. "But quit worryin'. They won't find her."

"If you'd only taken my advice!" said Nicky. "It would a' been a cinch to slit her throat, toss her in a ditch—"

"I've waited too long, Nicky," Jim said, interrupting. "To me, it's worth the risk to keep her alive."

"We've got to bump her anyhow," Nicky cut in. "What the hell's the sense—"

"I've got reasons," said Jim softly. "Reasons for waiting."

He silenced Nicky with a sudden commanding gesture.

"Sit down," he said sharply.

Nicky sat down. The other man smiled, picked up the tabloid again and went on reading. He finished the gossip column and turned to the sports page, glanced at the headline, then looked across at Nicky, who was grinding his fingernails into his palms.

"The Yanks lost," he said. "Too bad. I lose eighty fish."

Nicky achieved a look of mock sympathy.

"Aint that a shame?" he said. "Jim went back to his paper."

"They oughta bench the Babs," he said. "He aint hittin' his weight."

The phone rang. Nicky's little eyes went to it swiftly; he started to rise. Jim waved him back. Unhurriedly he lifted the receiver, said: "Yeah? This is him . . . Okay, Sam. Be right down." He replaced the receiver. "The beer's here," he said. "Come on."

Nicky looked at him blankly. "The beer?" he said.

"Un-huh," said Jim.

He rose and motioned Nicky to follow. The younger man shrugged and stepped through the doorway behind him. They were in a long hall. Silently they walked toward the rear, passing three doors on their right.

At the extreme rear was a steep flight of stairs. They descended to the door which closed off the foot of them. Jim pressed an automatic catch, and the door swung open.

They stepped into a small square room, dimly lighted. Jim closed the door to the stairs, and the automatic latch clicked.

There were three other doors in the small room. Jim opened the one directly to his right, and shot a quick glance down a narrow hallway which opened into a flower-filled lobby. No one was there. He closed this door, locked it.

Then he opened the door opposite the one which led to the stairs. They stepped into a spacious kitchen, and the door clicked shut behind them. A food checker sat at a small table across the room. He glanced up and jerked a thumb toward the rear.

"Thanks, Sam," said Jim. (To Be Continued)
